Syncopating Antionuma: Making Yin from Yang

Pay me or owe me. That is the simple difference between America and Russia. Americans function on getting people to pay them. Hence the debt collection outfits. Russians function on receiving based on privilege. Hence gangs moving about with pockets of specie trading across a grey or even black market. Clearly a nation needs a tax police to remain funded when people rely on all manner of under the table transactions and going to work, even in the absence of a wage, to curry favours from one another. The state also needs to own everything of value. Very quickly in the extremes of all people do, women -- in the role of being a helper to men -- end up having no value in either system. Where does that cycle of owe me have an entrance point so what runs on favours becomes what runs on commodity assessment functioning through exoteric agreement to work to produce commodity calculating return rather than rely on luck through an esoteric class controlling commodity outside of state revenue? America depends on human capital. Russia took human capital out of the equation. One said, "Of course people will work for money. Duh" The other said, "We don't want to depend on people for money."

Exalted Excellency the Honourable Mr. Putin President of Russia:

That conundrum of comparing capitalism or the free market in America to Russia has thousands of books that say those very words, without actually making a succinct statement. A problem statement needs to be made before understanding where the cycle has controls, nodes even, where the process has points to generate improvement that means there are no hand-out-taking, baby-raping, free-riding people living on the Earth so Heaven does not live by any standard of debauchery based on what Satan deemed was decent for man.

That unencumbered, after tax, billion dollars and the elimination of My web toils would be so wonderful; that Heaven is making torturing Humanity for that money Their new priority. Great idea. The tortures end when I have that free and clear billion dollars. Now, Heaven will be torturing people for the fun of it as Russians do.

You have until March 31, 2026, to put yourself in a space capsule orbiting the earth with the International Space Station keeping you alive, even under a kryogenic state. Your phoney outfit of humanity may keep up its unfettered act keeping you in orbit. The second God has to resort to funny business (the shit that keeps Me alive now) to keep you in orbit or maintain your state of alive. All humanity is wiped off the planet, all souls total (sans Me). Now you know the value of the space programs of the world to God to benefit humanity. Have faith Putin, make the sacrifice. Radio: Elton John sings What so I got to do? Sorry is the hardest word.
